DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3, 4, and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fujita (U.S. 5,485,039), previously cited.

Regarding claim 1, Fujita discloses in figure 1, a semiconductor substrate 1; at least two semiconductor components 2 provided on the principle surface of the substrate; and multiple through holes, not numbered, which pass form the principle surface through the backside of the substrate and are provided in a region of the substrate between the at least tow components so as to substantially eliminate the electrical interference between the two components.

Regarding claims 3 and 4, a conductor film 6 is formed on the side faces of the through holes.

Regarding claim 6, Fujita discloses in figure 1, a semiconductor substrate 1; at least two semiconductor components 2 provided on the principle surface of the substrate; electrodes 3 of the at least two components provided on the substrate so as to substantially eliminate the electrical interference between the two components; a first group of through holes, not numbered, are under the electrodes; a first conductor film 6 provided on the side faces of the first group of through holes; a second group of through holes, which pass from the principle surface through the backside of the substrate and are provided in a region of the substrate between the components; a second conductor film 6 provided on the side faces of the second group of through holes; and a wiring layer, horizontal part of film 6, is on the back side of the substrate.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2, 5, and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fujita.

Regarding claim 2, Fujita discloses the claimed invention except the gap between two adjacent ones of the through holes is smaller than the thickness of the substrate. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the gap between two adjacent ones of the through holes smaller than the thickness of the substrate in order to make the device smaller.

Regarding claims 5 and 7, Fujita discloses the claimed invention except each component is a power-amplifying transistor. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use power-amplifying transistors as components 2 in order to use the device in a desired application, along with other circuits to be connected to the components.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 8/28/02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant mainly argues that the device in Fujita achieves a different purpose and does not teach the effect of maintaining isolation between the semiconductor components. This is not found persuasive, since Fujita discloses the invention as claimed, as set forth in the above rejections, further disclosing electrical isolation between electrical components. Note that in figures 1 and 2, element 4 is an insulation and element 8 an adhesive. Therefore, there could not be any electrical interference between elements 2, since an adhesive is also an insulator, and the adhesive along with insulation 4 would not allow any electrical interference between devices 2.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
